A request concerning transfer of copyrights of previously published articles

The Human Ergology Society is currently building up a digital archive of previously published materials in “Journal of Human Ergology” (JHE) from the inaugural issue in order to make it available for the public via the internet without charge. The archive will be placed on J-STAGE, operated by the Japan Science and Technology Agency. In moving forward with this project, the society needs to obtain permission from copyright holders (Japanese Copyright Law Articles 21-28).

With regard to the articles published in earlier years in which ownership of the copyrights is unclear, the society would like to obtain the reproduction rights (Japanese Copyright Law Article 21) and the public transmission rights (Japanese Copyright Law Article 23) from the copyright holders in order to promptly make the electronic archives public for use by researchers. Copyright holders, who wish not to grant the reproduction and public transmission rights to the society, are requested to contact the society at the address noted below before December 31st, 2009. In the event the society is not contacted, the matter will be processed as the permission is granted to the society.

Please note that the copyright transfer being requested at this time is for the purpose of making JHE electronically available to the public, and thus, authors will be allowed to use the materials without permission for their own research purposes.
